

MAN

Have broke their backs with laying manors on them
For this great journey. Shakespeare's Rich. II.
MANQU'LLER. n. f. [man and cpellan, Saxon.] A murderer;
a mankiller; a manslaughterer.
This was not Kayne the manqueller, but one of a gentler spirit and milder sex, to wit, a woman. Carew.
MANSE. n. f. [manſe, Latin.] A parsonage house.
MAN'SION. n. f. [manſio, Latin.]
1. Place of residence; abode; house.
All these are but ornaments of that divine spark within you, which being defended from heaven, could not elsewhere pick out so sweet a manſion. Sidney.
A fault no less grievous, if so be it were true, than if some king should build his manſion-house by the model of Solomon's palace. Hooker, b. v.
To leave his wife, to leave his babes,
His manſion, and his titles in a place,
From whence himself does fly? he loves us not. Shakeſp.
Thy manſion wants thee, Adam, rise
First man, of men innumerable ordain'd;
First father! call'd by thee, I come thy guide
To the garden of bliss, thy seat prepar'd.
A manſion is provided thee; more fair
Than this, and worthy heav'n's peculiar care,
Not fram'd of common earth. Dryden.
2. Residence; abode.
These poets near our princes sleep,
And in one grave their manſions keep. Denham.
MANS'L'AUGHTER. n. f. [man and slaughter.]
1. Murder; destruction of the human species.
The whole pleasure of that book standeth in open man- slaughter and bold bawdry.
To overcome in battle, and subdue
Nations, and bring home spoils, with infinite Manſlaughter, shall be held the highest pitch
Of human glory. Milton's Par. Loſt, b. xi.
2. [In law.] The act of killing a man not wholly without fault, though without malice.
MANS'L'A'YER. n. f. [man and slay.] Murderer; one that has killed another.
Cities for refuge for the manſlayer. Num. xxxv. 6.
MANSU'ETE. adj. [manſuetus, Lat.] Tame; gentle; not ferocious; not wild.
This holds not only in domestick and manſuete birds; for then it might be thought the effect of curation or institution, but also in the wild. Ray on Creation.
MANSUETUDE. n. f. [manſuetudo, French; manſuetudo, Lat.]
Tameſs; gentleness.
The angry lion did present his paw,
Which by consent was given to manſuetude;
The fearful hare her ears, which by their law
Humility did reach to fortitude. Herbert.
MANTEL. n. f. [mantel, old Fr.] Work raised before a chimney to conceal it, whence the name, which originally signifies a cloak.
From the Italians we may learn how to raise fair mantels within the rooms, and how to disguise the shafts of chimnies. Wotton's Architecture.
If you break any china on the mantel-tree or cabinet, gather up the fragments. Swift.
MANTELET. n. f. [manlelet, French.]
1. A small cloak worn by women.
2. [In fortification.] A kind of moveable penthouse, made of pieces of timber sawed into planks, which being about three inches thick, are nailed one over another to the height of almost six feet: they are generally caſed with tin, and set upon little wheels; so that in a siege they may be driven before the pioneers, and serve as blinds to shelter them from the enemy's small-shot: there are other mantellets covered on the top, whereof the miners make use to approach the walls of a town or castle. Harris.
MANTI'GER. n. f. [man and tiger.] A large monkey or baboon.
Near these was placed, by the black prince of Monomotapas's side, the glaring cat-a-mountain, and the man-mimicking mantiger. Arbutn. and Pope.
MANTEL. n. f. [mantell, Welsh.] A kind of cloak or garment thrown over the rest of the dress.
We, well-cover'd with the night's black mantles,
At unawares may beat down Edward's guard,
And seize himself. Shakespeare's Henry VI.
Poor Tom drinks the green mantle of the standing pool.
Shakespeare's King Lear.
The day begins to break, and night is fled,
Whole pitchy mantle over-veil'd the earth. Shakespeare.
Their actions were covered and disguised with mantles,
very useful in times of disorder, of religion and justice.
Hayward's Edward VI.
The herald and children are clothed with mantles of water green fatten; but the herald's mantle is stream'd with gold. Bacon's New Atlantis.

MAN

Before the heav'n thou wert, and at the voice
Of God, as with a mantle, didst invest
The rising world of waters dark and deep,
Won from the void and formless infinite. Milton.
By which the beauty of the earth appears,
The divers-colour'd mantle which she wears. Sandys.
Upon loosening of his mantle the eggs fell from him at unawares, and the eagle was a third time defeated. L'Eſtrange.
Dan Pope for thy misfortune griev'd,
With kind concern and skill has weav'd
A filken web; and ne'er shall fade
Its colours: gently has he laid
The mantle o'er thy sad distress,
And Venus shall the texture bless. Prior.
A spacious veil from his broad shoulders sew,
That set the unhappy Phaeton to view;
The flaming chariot and the steeds it shew'd,
And the whole fable in the mantle glow'd. Addison.
To MA'NTLE. v. a. [from the noun.] To cloke; to cover;
to disguise.
As the morning steals upon the night,
Melting the darkness; so thy rising senses
Begin to chace the ign'rant fumes, that mantle
Their clearer reason. Shakespeare's Tempest.
I left them
I th' filthy mantled pool beyond your cell,
There dancing up to th' chins. Shakespeare's Tempest.
To MA'NTLE. v. n. [The original of this word is not plain. Skinner considers it as relative to the expansion of a mantle: as, the hawk mantleth; she spreads her wings like a mantle.]
1. To spread the wings as a hawk in pleasure.
The swan with arch'd neck,
Between her white wings mantling, rows
Her state with oary feet. Milton's Par. Loſt, b. viii.
2. To joy; to revel.
My frail fancy fed with full delight
Doth bathe in bliss, and mantleth most at ease;
Ne thinks of other heaven, but how it might
Her heart's desire with most contentment please. Spenser.
3. To be expanded; to spread luxuriantly.
The pair that clad
Each shoulder broad, came mantling o'er his breast
With regal ornament. Milton's Par. Loſt, b. v.
The mantling vine
Lays forth her purple grape, and gently creeps Luxuriant. Milton's Par. Loſt, b. iv.
I saw them under a green mantling vine,
That crawls along the side of yon small hill,
Plucking ripe clusters. Milton.
You'll sometimes meet a fop, of niceſt tread,
Whose mantling peruke veils his empty head. Gey.
He with the Nais went to dwell,
Leaving the nectar'd feasts of Jove;
And where his mazy waters flow,
He gave the mantling vine, to grow
A trophy to his love. Penton's Ode to Lord Gower.
4. To gather any thing on the surface; to froth.
There are a fort of men, whose viſages
Do cream and mantle like a standing pond;
And do a wilful stillness entertain,
With purpose to be drest in an opinion
Of wisdom, gravity, profound conceit. Shakespeare.
It drinketh fresh, flowereth, and mantleth exceedingly. Bacon's Nat. Hiſt. No. 46.
From plate to plate your eye-balls roll,
And the brain dances to the mantling bowl. Pope's Horace.
5. To ferment; to be in sprightly agitation.
When mantling blood
Flow'd in his lovely cheeks; when his bright eyes
Spark'd with youthful fires; when ev'ry grace Shone in the father, which now crowns the son. Smith.
MA'NTUA. n. f. [this is perhaps corrupted from mantua, Fr.]
A lady's gown.
Not Cynthia, when her mantua's pin'd awry,
E'er felt such rage, resentment, and despair,
As thou, sad virgin! for thy ravish'd hair. Pope.
How naturally do you apply your hands to each other's lappets, ruffles, and mantuas. Swift.
MA'NTUAMAKER. n. f. [mantua and maker.] One who makes gowns for women.
By profession a mantuamaker: I am employed by the most fashionable ladies. Addison's Guardian.
MANUAL. adj. [manuallis, Latin; manuel, French.]

hand.
This manual of laws, filed the confessor's laws, contains but few heads. Hale's Common Law of England.
In those prayers which are recommended to the use of the devout persons of your church, in the manuals and offices allowed them in our own language, they would be careful to have nothing they thought scandalous. Stillingfleet.
MANU'IAL. adj. [manubias, Lat.] Belonging to spoil; taken in war. Diſt.
MANU'BRIUM. n. f. [Latin.] A handle.
Though the fucker move easily enough up and down in the cylinder by the help of the manubrium, yet if the manu- brium be taken off, it will require a considerable strength to move it. Boyle.
MANUDU'CTION. n. f. [manuductio, Latin.] Guidance by the hand.
We find no open tract, or constant manuduction, in this labyrinth. Preface to Brown's Vulgar Errors.
That they are carried by the manuduction of a rule, is evident from the constant steadiness and regularity of their motion. Glanville.
This is a direct manuduction to all kind of sin, by abusing the conscience with undervaluing persuasions concerning the malignity and guilt even of the foulest. South's Sermons.
MANUFA'CTURE. n. f. [manus and facio, Latin; manufacture, French.]
1. The practice of making any piece of workmanship.
2. Any thing made by art.
Heav'n's pow'r is infinite: earth, air, and sea,
The manufacture maſs the making pow'r obey. Dryden.
The peasants are clothed in a coarse kind of canvas, the manufacture of the country. Addison on Italy.
To MANUFA'CTURE. v. a. [manufacturer, French.] To make by art and labour; to form by workmanship.
